Jenny Ming is one of America's leading retail executives. As president of Old Navy from 1999-2006, she oversaw the division's successful spinoff from parent company Gap, Inc. and built it into a $6 billion business.

Ming was named one of the country's top managers in 2000 by BusinessWeek Magazine. Fortune twice ranked her among the 50 most powerful women in American business in 2003 and 2004.

Since 2009 she has been president and CEO of Charlotte Russe, a specialty retailer of apparel and accessories catering to young women.
