Attachments (please submit the following along with your application; double-space your responses):

1. A copy of your resume.
2. A 2-page personal statement (750-word maximum). In Page 1, explain why you are interested in the SIF and how working as a SIF manager would contribute to your career objectives. In Page 2, explain your unique skill sets and how you can contribute to the SIF program.

Requirements:

To be eligible, students must currently be enrolled in either the USC Marshall MBA or the USC Marshall MBA.PM Program, be in good academic standing with a minimum cumulative 3.0 GPA at the time of application and plan to graduate in May 2022. All applicants are also required to have successfully completed GSBA 548. In addition, candidates must demonstrate the following qualities:

1. Serious commitment in the areas of asset management, investment banking, financial consulting and/or corporate finance.
2. High level of intellectual curiosity.
3. Excellent verbal and written communication skills.
4. Outstanding leadership and teamwork skills.
5. Highly professional.

Selection Process:

The Recruiting Committee will review your application and make recommendations for first-round interviews (30 minutes), which will be conducted by the SIF 2021 managers on Friday, January 29, 2021. In this interview, all applicants will be asked to give a 5-minute "pitch" of a stock or bond idea. In the second round, the SIF instructor will meet with the final candidates for a 20-minute interview during the weeks of Feb 1 and Feb 8, 2021. The SIF instructor will consult with an ad hoc faculty committee before the final selection is made. The final class list will be announced by February 2021.

About USC Marshall Student Investment Fund

This course offers a year-long seminar in applied portfolio management. It is designed to give students rigorous exposure to contemporary investment and portfolio theory and practice. It also allows the students to learn the skills of investment managers. Analytical tools for the valuation of stocks, bonds, and options will be presented. The course will also cover risk management and portfolio optimization, behavioral finance, and performance attribution. Students will demonstrate and refine their ability to apply analytical concepts and techniques through fund management, sector reports, company research reports, investment research, and security pitches.

The purpose of this course is fivefold:

1. To provide a select group of up to 16 MBA students with experience in managing a portion of the University's equity endowment;
2. To provide an academic background for the appreciation of security analysis and portfolio management through assigned and self-selected readings;
3. To enhance the academic experience through interaction with individuals and institutions engaged in the money management business;
4. To produce and present an Annual Report which will provide description of the course experience and a record of achievement; and
5. To award the Guilford C. Babcock Endowed Scholarship, the First Pacific Advisors, Inc. Scholarship and the Provident Investment Counsel Endowed Scholarship.

The students are selected based on their genuine interest in pursuing a long-term career in asset management, investment banking, and/or corporate finance. The number of students allowed to enroll in this two-semester program is limited to 16 so that (a) each student may have direct experience in managing one of five portfolios and (b) the class as a group can visit with a variety of money managers. The class requires a daytime availability on Mondays and Fridays so that the student managers can meet with each other and make off-campus visits during normal business hours. The expected time commitment is 8-10 hours a week.

For the 2022 class, the student managers will assume fund management responsibilities as of April 1, 2021 and will relinquish this responsibility as of March 31, 2022.
